This class recognizes responsibility for program management and supervision of the State's Vocational Rehabilitation program. Employees serve as managers of large, dynamic statewide programs in the areas of program development, planning, research and analysis, evaluation, casework services and related administrative functions. Position directs the work of lower-level managers, supervisors, program consultants and other professional and administrative staff engaged in identifying service delivery gaps and developing plans to meet those needs. Position directs staff in developing criteria to measure effectiveness of operations, solicits consensus on performance evaluation activities, and oversees the development or revision of statewide policies and procedures. Work involves considerable planning and coordination with other state and federal agencies to ensure comprehensive rehabilitation services.
